I lived in Ilminster for nearly 40 years until moving on marriage. I have fond memories of my childhood and middle years in this friendly market town and still a regular visitor to friends.

I wish to object to the INP in its current form and would like to see development sites reconsidered and back in the plan. The reasons given for dropping the sites - that the INP development group did not have the expertise or resources to complete this work - don't stand up. The public had already made its views known about the sites and this was ignored by the NPDG. Consultation has been a complete failure.

Yours faithfully
